

Stephanie D. Farmer

Tinicum School
Essington, Pennsylvania

Expanding on the importance of including the community in the education of our students. To follow the quote “It takes a village,” I find it continually important to include the outside community in supporting our teachers and student body. It is very important that students gain from the social curriculum as much as the academic curriculum. Our District has a huge push on our student body understanding their career choices and what options they have for the future. With working together, our students can get a hands-on experience before they ever leave our doors!